THIRD WESTCHESTER BIKE-TRAIN. THIS WILL BE THE BEST.

MANHATTAN MEMBERS ORGANIZE AUXILIARY RIDES COMMITTEE

By Roger Bergman

More than 15 members of the NYCC met on Thursday evening, August 26th at Sam Freedman's apartment to develop a Manhattan rides program for each weekend. Several routes, destinations, and distances were broached in all directions from Manhattan including New Jersey, Staten Island, Queens, and the Bronx. In addition, Sam proposed, and the group enthusiastically supported, a "Bike Repair and Adjustment Clinic" with experienced Club riders and mechanics planned for September 12 and 19th from 9AM to noon. It will be held in Central Park just across the drive from the Boathouse.

Another Bike-Train to Westchester is planned for Sunday, October 17th, an activity which will be of great value to those of us who don't have cars, and would like to get into the rolling hills of Westchester. In addition, the Manhattan Rides Committee set itself the goal of developing new ride leaders from among the newer members of the NYCC.

Anne Callahan, and Susan Freireich volunteered to join with me in leading the Manhattan Rides Committee, and you will be hearing from us regularly in the New York Cycle Club newsletter as well as when we call you to help develop ride leaders and to lead them yourselves. You may contact us with your idea, suggestions and assistance as follows:

In the last four months, more than 75 cyclists have joined the New York Cycle Club, and our membership is now approaching the 300 mark. They come from all over the Greater New York Area with a substantial number living in Manhattan, and with a good representation from Brooklyn, Queens, Westchester and New Jersey.

To answer the needs of these new members, we have expanded our Rides Program considerably, extending it to all categories of riders, and to all sections of the City. In addition, the newly established Manhattan Rides Committee (see separate story) will be setting up a program of rides starting from points in Manhattan, geared expressly for those members who do not have cars.

You will note that there is much more information available about each ride than there has been in the past. In addition, you have the name and phone number of each Ride Leader. If you have some questions or some doubts about your ability to do the particular ride, I urge you to call the Ride Leader before the ride, and talk with him/her about it. Is it too hilly for me? Will the pace be too fast, and will I therefore be a drag on the rest of the group? Is the distance a little too much for this trip? These are some of the questions that you might kick around with the Leader before the trip.

I was quite disturbed to find that many of the newer members who came along on the Westchester Bike-Train came without spare inner tubes, tools, a water bottle, and other necessary items for any trip (with the possible exception of one lap around Central Park, and even there a spare comes in handy.) I suggest strongly that they come down to the KLUB KLINIC on Sunday, September 12th at the Central Park Boathouse from 9AM to noon, and ask lots of questions about their bikes, their equipment, (or lack of it), and anything else they have in mind. No questions on sex, please. Save those for Dr. Reuben or Dr. Comfort.

THE DOMINO THEORY
Motivated by curiosity and catalyzed into action by a recent article in Bicycling, I attached a Stewart Warner speedometer on my bicycle for a few rides. After making a few simple tests, I was satisfied that the trip meter (resettable) showing accumulated mileage was very accurate and that the speedometer was acceptably accurate for my purposes. For what it is worth, here are some of my conclusions:

Apparently I've been underestimating distances on bike trips,— probably because the oil company maps used for planning only show mileage on main roads or major arteries. Bicyclists tend to seek out paved secondary roads to avoid traffic and have to guesstimate miles. One favorite trip I have taken for years and always thought was about 40 miles, turned out to be almost 45—more than a 10% difference. Since my actual time riding (not counting snack time and other stops etc) was about three hours, I had thought for years that my average cycling speed was about 13 mph—the meters proved it was nearer 15.

Next, I discovered downhill speeds to be much higher than I believed. On smooth paved roads, unbraked coasting down hills, I reached speeds of almost 40 mph. Even on bumpy descents where judicious braking was required, 20 or 25 mph was not unusual. I'm not too sure if this is a tribute to the stability and good design of my bicycle,— or to my manic style of riding downhill. Based on this experience, I can easily believe that a tandem with more weight but the same wind resistance could coast at 50 mph. I view claims of 60 mph down hill by both singles and tandem riders with considerable skepticism. Maybe falling off the edge of a cliff they 'll reach 60!!

On the other hand, uphill speeds were substantially lower than I expected, and tough hills (such as Whipporwill north to south, North Porchuck, or Bear Ridge West to East) were ground out in my low low 35" gear at a painful 4 to 5 mph. On the flat without adverse winds, it is easy to cruise along at about 20 mph in a 79" or 83" gear, without undue strain, carrying on a conversation and taking in the scenery. However my normal relaxed touring speed seemed to be about 15 to 17 mph. When this was figured into the considerably slower upgrade and uphill times, many trips averaged a typical "B" rider's pace of 13 mph. It is obvious that those "A" riders who leave me so far behind are doing most of it by charging up the hills in high, cardiac arrest, gears. If I ever want to be in the "A" class, I've got to learn to climb much better.—Maybe next year or even the year after!!!

One day, not too long ago, a few of us NYCC braved the crowds on the Sunday Bronx River Parkway Bikeway — as I've reported, Westchester closes a five mile stretch of highway from 10 am to 2 pm every Sunday and reserves it for bicycling --. The overall impression received is that the crowds were having great fun. Some groups would ride a hard four miles at a blistering 7 mph and then stop to rest on the grassy mall at the roadside for a picnic before riding home. At times I even saw parents carefully shepherding children on bicycles for a short distance. The people were orderly, the route well policed, and refreshment stands and repair facilities were provided. While I hardly recommend the bikeway as a steady diet for avid cyclists like ourselves, it is well worthwhile once in a while, if for nothing else than to help us keep our prospective as to how the vast majority of bicycle owners ride. We are a very small percentage of the bicycle owners. Just the paid circulation of the principal bicycling magazines should tell us that, but we all have one important thing in common, we enjoy our bicycles and bicycling.

Knock on wood—this season I've gone several thousand miles on sew-ups without a flat on the road ( tho I did blow one tire with my floor pump by over inflation ) which I attribute directly to tiresavers. Hope to see you all on the road.
Some Comments on Gears and Other Stuff

by Harry Rutten

On June 27, I had the pleasure of riding Duane Thompson's Candlewood Lake Century. It was, with question, the most demanding 100 miles I ever put wheels to. Beautiful country, but the price for the views was paid with hills, and hills, and hills, ad infinitum.

After climbing several, I took note of the strong riders, busting and honking in 50's and 60's whilst I busted in 30's. We all had pains, but I had less. Am I glad I listened to my "Uncle Irving," who taught me, at not so young an age, that low gears are nice to have when you need them. I didn't walk, and I was back with the pack, and 30 is a nice number.

During the ride, I watched 2 Del Mondos destroy themselves, and several other less expensive of the species. I rolled on with Schwinn Super Record clinchers (the best for $10), as I have for a while. I have tubularts and I do ride them, but not for long distance touring and in unknown territory—which leads me to the point......

"The pleasures of cycling are best enjoyed by making the difficult as easy as possible and by eliminating as many potential problem areas as you can."

2 cups oats
1 cup wheat germ
7 oz. package coconut
1 cup sunflower seeds (hulled)
1/2 cup sesame seeds (optional)
1/3 cup safflower oil
2 tablespoons honey
1/2 cup slivered almonds

NO BODY ASKED ME BUT------ By Art Byers

It is time for the annual tirade against those club members who bicycle without tools, depending on others to rescue them from trouble, often trouble that two turns of a screwdriver on a derailer set screw could cure. More than one veteran NYCC club member has advise me to "let them rot by the roadside, that's the only way they learn!!" Because of my inherent nobility, I haven't gone that far as yet, but by the time the disaster victim has had to listen to my pompous learned discourse on carrying tools, maybe they wish that I had. Here are three stages of tools you may want to carry for a day's trip:

1) Mandatory minimum

A spare tire if you have sewups, a spare tube if you have wired-on or as a not-so-satisfactory alternate, a tube patch kit.

A GOOD QUALITY pump with a head that fits your type of tire valve. This means at least a $10.00 to $14.00 investment in a Silca or Zefal. If you tote a $2.49 discount store special, you deserve what will surely happen to you one day.

A small screwdriver--some come with a hollow handle in which you can store various blades such as cross point, regular, etc.

A 6" or 8" crescent wrench, or a heavy sheet metal wrench such as supplied by Brooks or Raleigh, but make sure it fits ALL the important bolts on your bicycle or a "dog bone" wrench--again take care as they come in English and Metric so be sure your choice fits.

two or three dimes for the phone booth for emergency calls

IF you do not carry at least the above, we veteran know-it-alls are now legally entitled to let you "rot by the roadside."

2) Not so mandatory, (but nice to have added to the minimum)

Alan or hex wrenches if your bicycle requires them, or a campy type "T" wrench of 8mm socket and allen wrench if you are heavy on Campy equipment. Again hex wrenches come in metric and English--get the right ones.

A small channel lock pump pliers, under 6" in length.

Spoke wrench--some of the sheet metal wrenches mentioned have a notch in them to use as a spoke wrench.

Sticky rim tape or cement (for sew up tires only) two tire irons (for wired-on only)

3) Oh Boy!! Am I a pessimist (add to the above) not really needed.

Second spare tire for sew ups, second spare tube for wired on extra spokes including one or two with a "Z" bend to use temporarily.

Small Var or Cyclo chain rivet tool

Small aerosol can of penetrating oil such as WD-40

Also nice to have along is a clean soft rag, to clean your hands on in case you throw the chain. (I always felt cycling shorts are black so you can wipe your hands on them and no one will notice.) However, a clean rag is not really a tool, just a convenience.

New Subject: In talking to two or three of my favorite bicycle retailers these little tidbits of information, worth passing on, were mentioned:

Some brands of imported tubes are made of a new compound to which the tube patches WILL NOT STICK no matter what.

Stelber Ind. is out of business (Iverson) so if you buy one for your child at a discount store, remember there is no manufacturer to back it up.
Here it is the middle of August, and Labor Day is just around the corner. As of this writing only nine people have registered for the Labor Day Weekend at the Tennanah Lake Shore Lodge. This is a very poor showing; and I can assure you that if there is not considerable improvement we will be unwelcome there in the future.

Over the past year or two I have been approached by a number of members who have attended the big weekends at Pakatakane Lodge requesting that the club find a new place. Your officers have done just that, and have come up with what we feel is an ideal place. The people at Tennanah Lake are "Gung Ho" for our club to spend the Labor Day Weekend with them, and have helped us plan a fine gala weekend of activities. Taking all of this into consideration the response to our efforts is to say the least outrageous. This is your club and deserves your support.

The club will have another chance to show its support on the first weekend in October at the SCOR '76 rally also at the Tennanah Lake Shore Lodge. This rally is hosted and sponsored by the Catskill Wheelmen, and will run from October 2nd through the 4th. You may consult your club officers or write directly as follows:

Warren H. Bergstrom, Rally Master
SCOR '76, Catskill Wheelmen
PO Box 552
Monticello, NY 12701.

The NYCC had a good showing there last year. Perhaps we can duplicate it.

Other upcoming events: The September 21st meeting at Rinaldo's will feature a slide show presented jointly by Frank Sanchez and Yours Truly entitled "The Long Weekends" with a cast of hundreds and featuring the New York Cycle Club. The slides are of SCOR '75, GEAR '76, Spokes and Sparklers, and the LAW National Convention in Carlisle, Pa. For those who attended these great events the show will bring back memories. For the rest, it will give some ideas as to what happens with the NYCC on the long summer weekends.

In October, our treasurer, Joe Messing, will present the second in his fine stimulating series entitled "Everything You Always Wanted To Know About Your Bicycle, But Were Afraid To Ask."

If anyone has slides or movies, items for auction, or technical knowledge which might be of interest to the club, we again urge you to step forward so that we can put you on at a future meeting.

Again let's remember that this is YOUR club. Let's get behind it and support it all the way.

Bob Herzfelder
